FREW & CAMPBELL, PROPRIETORS

[Entered at the Postoffler at Wheeling, W. Va., s

We published yesterday a letter of Mr. ven, Connecticut, in which the veteran of Grammercy Park dealt out to the club extravagant laudations on Thomas Jeffer- gated by a man whom Mr. Tilden glorifles, son as the great statesman of the early days and whom so many Democrats worship, as of our republic. It seems as if we ought to know by this time whether Mr. Jefferhave had from such parentage a crop of son is deserving of these posthumous tri-butes to his statesmanship. We have in this Buchanan and Jeff Davis. No wonder the country a great party professedly founded people have repudiated such statesmanand it seems as if that party at least ought our institutions. to be sure of the foundation whereon it professes to have built. The question arises, however, is it sure of its founda-Is it a party built on the ideas of as follows: Thomas Jefferson, and do his ideas constitute a foundation whereon any party can stand that believes in the period the American Union? Thomas Jefferson was hostile to the adoption of the constitution that now constitutes that us a Union. If we are a nation to-day we are so despite of his opposition to the instrument whereunder our nationality has been accomplished. We owe him nothing tues him a great statesman, and that entitles him to the extravagant enlogies of Mr. Tilden as against George Washington, John Adams and Alexander Hamilton-all three of whom were the friends and advocates of the constitution.

But not only did Mr. Jefferson not favor the adoption of the Federal Coastitution but, worse, than that, he became the author of the so-called resolutions of 1798—written by him after the adoption of the Constitution-after Washington and Adams had been elected Presidents under that Constitution-after he had served in Washington's Cabinet as Secretary of State-written to encourage and promote his own election to the Presidency-which resolutions more than any document ever penned in this country sowed the dragon's teeth that cul. minated first in a nulification movement in Kentucky, next in the attempted nullification of South Carolina, and lastly in the rebellion itself. The resolutions of 1798 are long, and we have not space to reproduce them in this reference to Mr. Tilden's letter, but the first one of the series reads as follows:

first one of the series reads as follows:

Resolved, That the several States comprising the United States of America are not united on the principle of unlimited submission to their general Government; but by a compact under the style and title of a Constitution of the United States, and amendments thereto, they constituted regeneral government for special purposes—delegated to that government extrain definite powers, reserving, each State to itselt, the residuary mass of right to their own self-government; and that whensoever the General Government assumes undelegated powers, its acts are unauthoritative, void and of no force; that to this compact each State acceded as a State and as an integral party; its costates forming, as to itself, the other party; that the government created by this compact was not made the exclusive or final judge of the powers delegated to itself, since that would have made its discretion, and not the constitution, the measure of its powers but that as in all other cases of and not the constitution, the measure of its powers; but that, as in all other cases of compact among powers having no common judge, each party has an equal right to judge for itself, as well of infractions as of the mode and measure of redress."

The author of this rope of sand became President of the United States on the 4th of March, 1801. Up to that time he had been an extreme and relentless stickler for the most rigid and literal construction of the Federal pact, and for denying to the Government all authority for which express warrant could not be found in the provisions of that instrument. He had said: "In questions of power, then, let no more be heard of confidence in men, but bind them down from mischief by the chains of the Constitution."

Notwithstanding this language, one of the early acts of Mr. Jefferson as Presid to open a secret correspondence for the purchase of Louisiana, resulting in the purchase of that territory in the succeeding year. He confessed that there was no warrant in the Constitution for this purchase. He said that Congress "must ratify and pay for i and throw themselves on their country for doing for them unauthorized what we know they would have done for themselves had they been in a situation to do

This was the language of the great strict constructionist of the Constitution, Before he became President he was for tying everybody down by "the chains of the Constitution," but when he himself be-come President he found ways and means to get from under the chains of the Consti Jefferson was a scheming and designing man. He, more than any one else, disgusted Washington with public life, and made him eager to retire to the quiet of Mt. Vernon. Look at his conduct in the Cabinet when the Frenchman, Genest, came to this country as the representative of the Red Repub ic of France, and when in defiance of our laws he undertook to fit out privateers in our ports. In spite o Jefferson, Washington requested his recall and was at one time on the point of order ing him out of the country. Jefferson's principal clerk as Secretary of State under Washington, was a Frenchman named Freneau, the editor of a paper tha teemed with personal attacks on Washing ton. Jefferson is himself authority for the statement that the attacks so incensed Washington that on one occasion, at a Cab-inet meeting, he declared "he would rather be in his grave than in his present situation.

These brief references, for they are necessarily very brief, show the manner of man whom Tilden laudates as a sort of Democratic delty. Seeing that the Dem ocracy have him for a deity, is it any wonder that they saw no way to save the Union from wreck and ruin in 1860? Is it any wonder that the apostles and disciples of this deity set up the right of secession and appealed to his name and his resolutions of 1798 as their watchword? Was Daniel Webster a great statesman? If he was, Thomas Jefferson was anything but a great statesman. In his speech on

Nullification, Webster said, in reply to Hayne, one of Jefferson's discipl

Before going abroad just study the climate and the season, and your system as well; such forethought will pay if you are subject to rheumatism. If you are inclined to traverse the damp and marshy districts, don't do it unless you are well supplied with St. Jacobs Oil, which is far more efficacious in curing rheumatism than all the tours that may be undertaken. In proof of this we will give the words of our well-known railroad man and member of City Council from the Sixth ward, Mr. D. J. CINCINNATI, Feb. 16, 1882. Dr. O. E. Newten, Physician and Surgeon, No. 69 West Ninth Street.—My Deur Sir—Hawing been severely taxed throughout the day yesterday in giving attention to my domestic duties, in the evening I found myself prostrated and sick from a periodical attack of ner vous headache. So sick was I, that I would have been glad to have rushed to my room rest, but necessity required that I should give attention to many that were stopping with me in my house of thirty-two rooms. In this state of anxiety and suffering, at 'o'clock is the evening I applied to you for some relief; and I truthfully say that in less than five in minutes, perhaps two (2) minutes, after you had applied your remedies with your Golden Atomiser, I was entirely relieved, and proceeded with my duties, and have not had a part cle of pain in my head since. Knowing a friend that was also suffering from a severe attack of nervous headache like myself, I went for her and brought her unsolicited to you office. I also say truthfully that this lady also was entirely cured in less than five (5) min utes from the time she resched your office.

DR. O. E. NEWEON—Dear Sir—I have for years been subject to regular attacks of sick headtehe, which became so severe as to render me unable to be about. Having been advised by a friend to purchase one of Dr. O. E. Newton's Nazal Spray. Atomizers, I did so, and it alords me great pleasure to state that since its use I have been entirely free from the achee which formerly made life almost unendurable. The treatment, while being very pleasant, CINCINNATI, May 11, 1881 Having suffered severely for a few days with excruciating pains in the head, I appealed to Dr. O. E. Newton for advice, and cheerfully testify that with the use of his Atomizer, or Nasal Spray, and liquids contained therein, I was almost instantaneously refleved. I have one of the Atomizers at home now, and its use is so simple, and its effects so pleasant, that any child can use it.

CINCINNATI, February 16, 1882. Dn. O. E. Newtox—Dear Sir—Having been recommended by Mrs. Moore to apply to you or the relief of sick headache, with which I have been troubled very often, I called upon on yesterday, and to my delight, I will say that after you had applied your medicine with our Golden Atomizer, I was in less than five (5) minutes entirely cured. I will cheerfully ecommend my iriends, should they be afflicted with a severe pain in the head, to you for reatment.

Sanan J. Wood,
Assistant to Mrs. Ella Moore.

CINCINATI, January 20, 1882.

I called at Dr. Newton's office, telling him how I had been, and was, suffering with head-ache; that I was taken with such a terrible headache at 1r. m. the day before, that I could not see and had to quit business, and I was still suffering terribly until I reached Dr. Newton's office at 11:30 A. m., to take my treatment for Catarrh. The Doctor seated me in a chair and used medicine in his Atomizer, he not telling me what he was doing until I was entirely relieved of my headache, or any pain in the head whatever, in less than five (5) minutes. The effect was a pleasant and entire relief.

On last Tuesday afternoon (May 11th) I was suffering so intensely from an excruciating pain in my head, that it was utterly impossible for me to proceed with my household duties, or to perform any duty whatever, when I applied to Dr. Newton for relief. He used his New and Radical Discovery, for all forms of pain in the head, with his New Golden Spray Atomizer, and I truthfully say that in less than five (5) minutes every symptom of pain in my head had passed away, and I was fully able to resume my duties. Feeling exceedingly grateful for this immediate cure, I am, Most Respectfully.

CINCINNATI, May 13, 1881.

DR. O. E. Newton—Dear Dr.—I think it due you, both as a mark of gratitude from myself, and also for the benefit of others who may desire to avail themselves of this speedy means of relief, that I can, from practical experience, teatify to the remarkable success of your new-discovery in connection with the use of your New Golden Spray Atomizer. You recollect the day I came to see you, being hardly able to open my eyes from severe pains in the head. I had also been suffering from it all day, and could find no relief until I made up my mind to visit you, and must say that upon application of your remedy with the Atomizer, I was relieved of all pains in less than five (5) minutes.

CINCINSATI, O., Feb. 28, 1882. I called at Dr. O. E. Newton's office this morning, being under his treatment for Catarrh and Bronchitts. I had not gotten up until 10 o'clock, on account of a terrible healache. Upon taking Dr. Newton's headache medicine through his Atomizer, after the application | felt like I had another head on me, all pain having disappeared, and heing entirely cured in less than five minutes, and my head feeling fresh and bright after he had got through with his application. I can recommend Dr. Newton's Headache Cure to any one suffering with any kind of headache or pain in the head.

I desire this to be known, that others who may have a doubt of your ability, may knot what relief you gave me. While in your office I heard others say "that they had also proviously been as quickly relieved of pain in the head as you had succeeded in relieving me. This information removed the doubt that I had had previously.

I might add that no one could realize my happy change of mind, when only a few min utes before I had feared, etc., etc., and to be instantaneously relieved, and to be made the feel cheerful and confident. I beg to sign myself. Your obedient servant, OLIA NEWLON.

Directions for Using my Treatment for the Radical Cure of Headache and Neuralgia.

This medicine will be used with my Atomizer thus: Have the patient seated in a chair, wash the nose with water inside by insuffiction, after which blow all the mucus out of the nose. Then gently and continuously press the bulb until the medicine is tasted in the throat. Then use in the other nostril in the same way; then have the patient draw four long breaths of fresh air; then to be seated in the chair again, and repeat the spray on each side. The patient then to walk across the room twice, drawing in long breaths of fresh air, and the patient will be relieved of headache every time. If there be any heat in the head, before using the spray lay a dampened towel to the head. In not one single instance, and I have applied it very frequently, have I failed to radically relieve.

O. E. NEWTON, M. D.

MY GOLDEN ATOMIZER.

This Instrument, if handled carefully, will not get out of order, but it is not a toy to play with. When the patient tastes the pray in the throat, that fact tells him that enough has been used. This is always known by ne without one word spoken by the patient, as he always moves away from the instrument when he has enough, or can taste it in the throat. There is just one precaution to be guarded against, and that is not to try to do too much. If you do, you may be too long in using it, and get confused. But an even practice is sufficient with all.

O. E. NEWTON, M. D. O. E. NEWTON, M. D.

THE DOUCHE.

Let the patients charge the bulb, open their mouth, and, while drawing in a long breath, pass the instrument backwards until it touches the back part of the throat, when you will quickly press the bulb. When the fluid reaches the throat, if the patient leans the head a little forward, the wash will come out of the end of the flose, showing that the whole lining membrane of the nose to be washed. Though it is not essential that the medical fluid should come out of the nose in treatment for Catarrh, as the posterior nares only is to be washed by the Douche. The Atomizer washes the front.

The Douche, I said, should be used twice a day, but if you have a very bad case of Naso-Pharyngeal Catarrh, where the patient suffers from a copious and continuous flow from the posterior nares, the Douche in this instance should be used three (3) times a day.
